Values are what guide and influence you to make decisions in life.

Why are values important?

As a coach, athlete, judge , event organizer, NAC administrator... you are in a position of authority and a role model for your “neighbourhood”. Your choices and behaviours, in many instances, will influence people around you for better or worse.

FAI AND THE WORLD ANTI-DOPING CODE...

On 12 November 2003, the FAI General Conference in Krakow, Poland endorsed the World Anti-Doping Code. In taking this decision the General Conference agreed that FAI, as an International Federation, should comply with the WADA Anti-Doping Code and accepted additional obligations to those required of national bodies and sports agencies. Without this commitment, FAI sports and NACs would no longer receive official Government support and subsidies, or have the right to host FAI World Championships.

Following adoption of the World Anti-Doping Code, the FAI Air Sport General Commission (CASI) approved appropriate changes to the FAI General Section. As such, the FAI Anti-Doping Rules are designed to implement FAI's responsibilities under the World Anti-Doping Code. FAI requires athletes to accept these rules as a condition of their participation in air sports.
